

DAVID DOMENICI

See Forever Foundation & Maya Angelou Charter School

1998 Global Fellow

PERSONAL BIO

David Domenici is one of the co-founders of the See Forever Foundation and Maya Angelou Schools. He currently serves as See Forever's Executive Chairman. David has worked with See Forever's target population since the inception of Project SOAR, the predecessor program to See Forever and Maya Angelou, in 1995. He is a 1992 graduate of Stanford Law School, and served for eight years as the volunteer director of DCWorks, a summer pre-college program for at-risk teens from DC, Philadelphia, and New York. His work experience includes a year teaching school full-time in DC, an internship at the Public Defender Service for the District of Columbia, two years in finance on Wall Street, and three years in general practice at the law firm of Wilmer, Cutler & Pickering. David is a member of the 1998-99 Washington Post Principals Leadership Institute and a 2002 Ashoka Fellow.

Organization/Fellow Location

Washington, United States

Impact Location

North America

United States

Organization Structure

Nonprofit

VISIT WEBSITE

