

MARGARET WILLIAMS

Biodiversity Conservation Center

Co-Founded with Eugene Simonov

1993 Global Fellow

BIG BOLD IDEA

Restore and protect the pristine nature all over Northern Eurasia by providing methodological and consultative assistance to conservation initiatives, green activists, staff of nature reserves, national parks and other protected natural areas.

PERSONAL BIO

Margaret Williams is the Managing Director of Arctic Program at the World Wildlife Federation. She has an MS in Environmental Studies from Yale School of Forestry and Environmental Studies, and a BA in American Studies from Smith College. She has experience in Russian conservation, arctic wildlife and conservation issues, bering sea ecoregion environmental stresses, and biodiversity projects in Russia and Central Asia.

Organization/Fellow Location

Washington, United States

Impact Location

Asia

Europe

Russian Federation

Organization Structure

Nonprofit

VISIT WEBSITE ↗

