MELANIE EDWARDS

MobileMetrix

2007 Global Fellow

BIG BOLD IDEA

Employ youth in developing countries to gather demographic data on the more than one billion impoverished people who have no official record of their lives.

PERSONAL BIO

Melanie Edwards has had significant experience in both the private and public sectors, having worked at J.P. Morgan and the International Data Group, as well as the United Nations Information Technology Service. She received a BA from Washington University, and an MA in international relations from The Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy at Tufts University. Melanie is a former Peace Corps volunteer and Reuters Digital Vision Fellow at Stanford University, where she is currently a lecturer on Social Entrepreneurship.

Organization/Fellow Location

San Francisco, United States

Impact Location

South America

Brazil

Organization Structure

Nonprofit

VISIT WEBSITE ↗